February 14, 2013

Dear _____,

Today, American Airlines announced its intent to merge with US Airways. Because of our relationship, I wanted to reach out to you personally to discuss the announcement and let you know how much we at American value our relationship with you.

We are thrilled by the exciting and historic news that American Airlines and US Airways have announced plans to come together to create the new American Airlines.

The combined company will retain the iconic, globally recognized American Airlines brand and will have a robust global network, a strong financial foundation and one of the most modern and efficient fleets in the industry.

Maintaining all the hubs currently served by both airlines, we will offer more than 6,700 daily flights to 336 destinations in 56 countries. In addition, the combined airline will benefit from American's landmark agreements with Boeing and Airbus, which are designed to transform the new American Airlines' fleet over the next four years and solidify its fleet plan into the next decade.

We are committed to working as quickly and efficiently as possible to complete the transaction and exit bankruptcy. The merger is subject to customary approvals and closing conditions and during this time, we will continue normal business operations at each respective carrier. We will keep you updated and invite to you read the attached press release as well as visit www.aa.com/arriving for additional information.

As you already know, most of our competitors have been through a similar process. In those mergers, enhanced networks and cost synergies were important goals, and strategic partners played a critical role in achieving a successful result.

All of us on the American team appreciate our relationship with you, and we look forward to continuing that relationship well into the future. If you have any questions please contact me directly.

We are excited about our future as the New American and hope that you are too!

All the best,

Charles Schubert
Vice President – Network Planning
American Airlines
