American Airlines Cargo™

A Bright Future for American Airlines Cargo

This is an exciting time for American Airlines Cargo and for you, our customer. We are in the midst of creating the new American Airlines, and we're expanding our network, products and services, fleet and technology to maintain a leadership position in the cargo industry.

This year, we continue to expand our network, providing you with more options to easily transport your cargo to new destinations around the world. In South America, we will soon be adding service from Lima and Bogota to Dallas-Fort Worth, as well as Porto Alegre and Curitiba to Miami. We're also expanding our network globally, with new service from Dallas-Fort Worth to Seoul, South Korea, as well as Chicago to Dusseldorf, Germany, and New York to Dublin, Ireland.

We are building toward the youngest and most modern fleet among major U.S. carriers. This year, we have 59 new mainline aircraft slated for delivery, and we are in the midst of a significant renewal and transformation of our fleet.

In January, we unveiled our new Boeing 777-300ER, which flew from Sao Paulo to Dallas-Fort Worth. This new aircraft gives us the ability to carry even more cargo, with 38 percent more cargo capacity than the 777-200. This is critical to serving the growing markets in South America and around the world.

At American Airlines Cargo, we are always looking for ways to improve our customer experience. By investing in and improving our infrastructure, products and technology, we are making sure everything we do is aligned to our customers' needs.

Add to all of that the exciting and historic news that American Airlines and US Airways have announced plans to come together to create the new American Airlines, which will offer more than 6,700 daily flights to 336 destinations in 56 countries.

There are many positive changes ahead, and we remain committed to focusing on our customers and the integrity of our operations. As the new American arrives, we will fly into an exciting and bright future that is full of opportunity for our customers and business.

All of us on the American Airlines Cargo team appreciate your business, and we look forward to strengthening our partnership well into the future.
